Trial Court Case # 3PA-13-00032CR

In Parsons v. State, Alaska App. Memorandum Opinion No. 6746 (December 19, 2018), this Court vacated the judgment of the superior court and remanded the case, directing the superior court to reconsider Parsons's request for credit against his sentence. The superior court was authorized to hold new evidentiary hearings and conduct any other proceedings that it deemed necessary. The superior court was to report its findings to this Court within 120 days.

That said, however, the Clerk of the Palmer Court brought to the attention of the Clerk of the Appellate Courts that the judge who had issued the original judgment in this case had since retired, and that the judge's replacement never received notice of this Court's directive.

For this reason, the superior court shall have an additional 60 days, June 17, 2019, to report its findings to this Court.

Because the superior court is still authorized to hold new evidentiary hearings and conduct any other proceedings it deems necessary, the court may request additional time if more time is required.
